Mansfield Still Wants a Deadline

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has renewed his campaign to have Congress declare a six-month deadline for U.S. military withdrawal from South Vietnam. He says he would be delighted if President Nixon beat him to it.

Mansfield proposed an amendment to add his end-of-war legislation to a $21-billion bill authorizing funds for missiles, ships, warplanes and other weaponry.

He said if it is stymied this time—as it was once before—by deadlock and compromise between the Senate and the House, he will propose it all over again.

"Nothing would please me better than an announcement from the White House setting a time certain for withdrawal," Mansfield said as he introduced again the amendment which, with one variation, was approved by the Senate June 22, only to die in the face of House opposition.

The one change: the earlier version would have declared it U.S. policy that all American military forces be withdrawn from Indochina within nine months. Mansfield said he subtracted the three months since Senate approval of the measure, resulting in a six-month deadline.

The withdrawal timetable is subject to release of all American prisoners of war held by the Communists in North Vietnam or elsewhere.

"Insofar as I am personally concerned," Mansfield said Monday, "the fate of these men, at this late date, is the only significant basis for this nation to remain any longer in Vietnam."

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee and leader of the opposition to the amendment, has not said when he would be willing to have a vote.

The earlier Mansfield measure was adopted June 22 as an amendment to the draft extension bill. It faced two votes, passing the first 57 to 42, and the second, 61 to 38. So, unless there is a major shift, Mansfield appears to have the votes to win again.

Man Charged With Harboring a Fugitive

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) — Winfred Johnson, 26, of Campbell, Mo., was arrested Monday by Paragould police on FBI charges of harboring a fugitive. Johnson allegedly harbored Marvin E. Grissom of McDougal in a motel room at Hampton, Ga., after Grissom and Jackie Neal Smith alleged robbed the Ash Flat bank of about $25,000. The pair then took the vice president of the bank and his wife and daughter hostage. Smith was captured May 25 and is currently in the Illinois state penitentiary. Grissom was killed Sept. 16 during a gunbattle with FBI agents at Marietta, Ga.

Capt. Bob Bratton of the Paragould police said the police received a tip that Johnson had left Kennett, Mo., Monday morning in a taxi. He was arrested at a roadblock in Paragould.

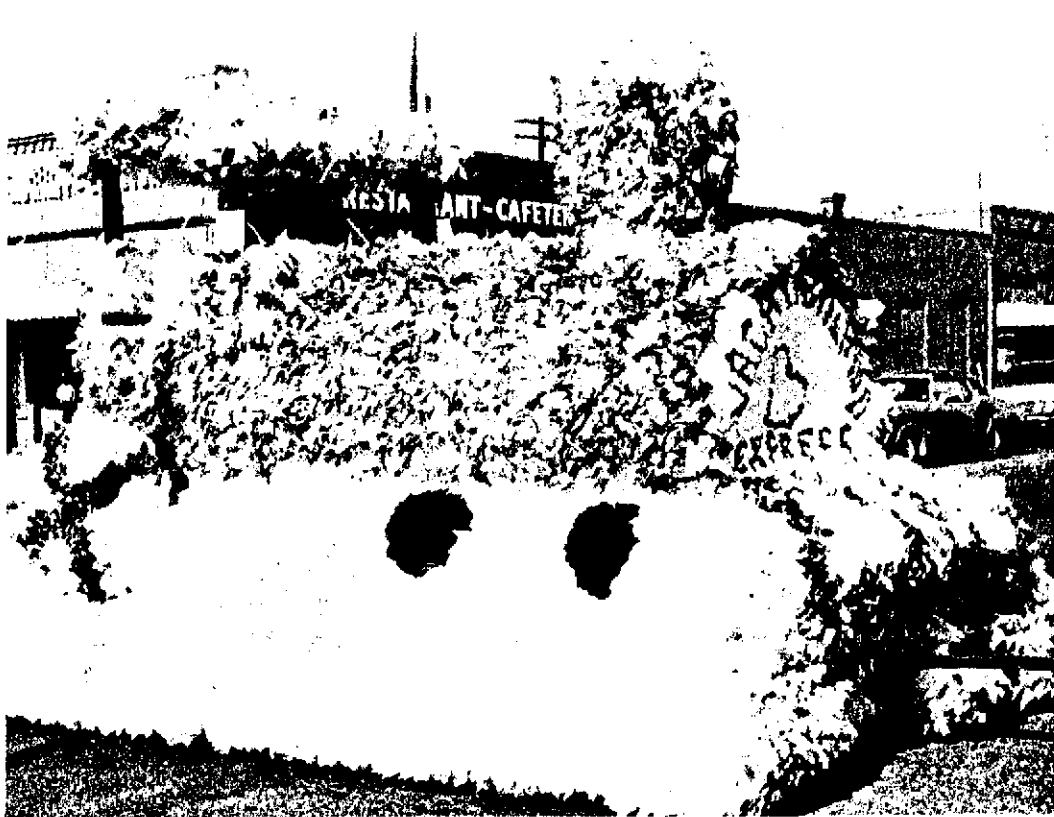

Judge Orders Body Exhumed

BLITHEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Blitheville County Judge A. A. Banks issued an order Monday that the body of Nathan Smith Jr., 15, be exhumed and that the grand jury be convened to investigate his death.

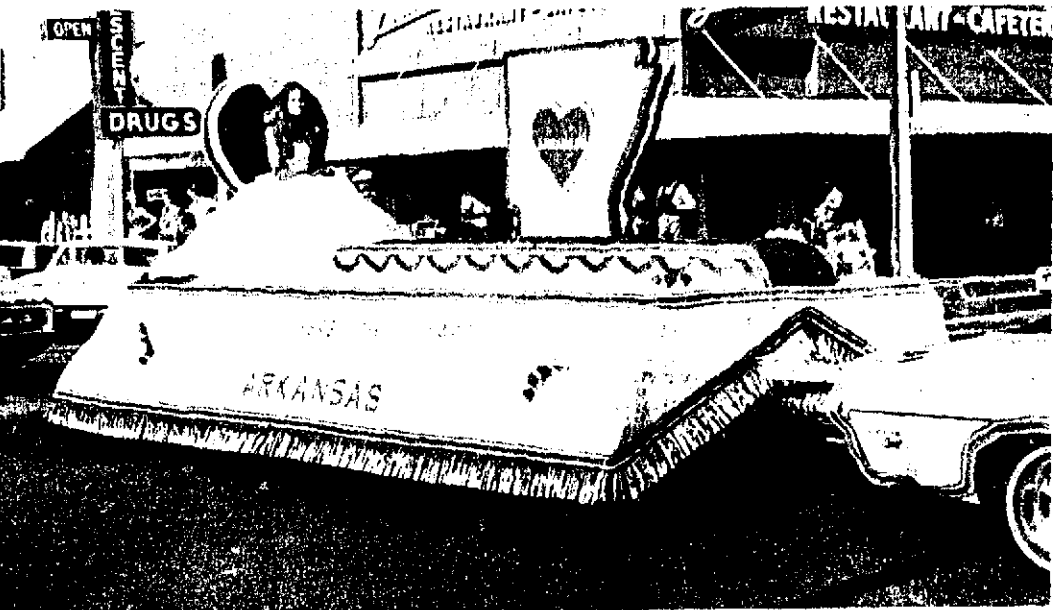

Smith allegedly died Aug. 5 at the Mississippi County Penal Farm while on a work detail. Prison officials said he drowned.

Oscar Fendler of Blitheville, the attorney for Smith's parents, said a coroner's report giving the cause of death as accidental drowning was dated Aug. 5, while Smith's body had not been recovered until Aug. 6.

Saying Something and Meaning Another Is Simply Double Talk

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — When you say one thing, but think another—that's one kind of double talk.

And it's by far the most popular kind. Some high-minded people criticize double talk and denounce it as hypocritical. But it probably arose in the first place because it is socially essential. If everyone went around always saying exactly what he thought, the world would echo with the sound of cracking skulls.

The advantage of double talk is this: what you say aloud wins you a reputation for tact, courtesy and kindness, while what you silently think keeps you basically honest with yourself.

For the benefit of the unsophisticated, here are a few common examples of feminine double talk. The spoken phrase is in quotes, followed in each case by what the girl or woman who said it actually was thinking.

"Don't you think it's a bit cold out to be walking, dear?"—Call us a cab or at least put your coat around me, you creep.

"Rugged you might say he was, but I don't see how any woman in her right mind could ever call him handsome."—I still wonder why he never called me for a second date.

"I'm not sure I want a really big church wedding, but I certainly have no plans to elope either."—You don't get as much loot if you elope.

"Little Ronald is getting more like his father every day that passes."—The little nunny cries if you frustrate him in any way.

"No, I couldn't let you do that, Madge. I know I put my purse in this handbag just before I left the house this morning. Let me look through it just once more."—Go on and pay the check, Madge. You know it's your turn.

Justice Black to Be Buried in Arlington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Supreme Court Justice Hugo La Fayette Black was to be buried today in Arlington Cemetery, just a few miles from the halls where his popular interpretations of the Constitution enhanced the freedom of all Americans.

The 85-year-old justice was to be laid to rest in Arlington Memorial Cemetery alongside the grave of his first wife after services at 2 p.m. in Washington Cathedral.

Members of the House and the Senate as well as justices who shared part of Black's 34 years on the nation's highest court were expected to attend the simple ceremonies.

President Nixon ordered that all flags over the nation's Capital be flown at half-mast until after the funeral.

Black, who always carried a thumb-worn copy of the Constitution with him, believed the guarantees of the Bill of Rights applied to individuals just as they were written.

He is survived by his second wife, the former Elizabeth DeMeritte, and two sons and a daughter by his first wife, Josephine Patterson Foster, who died in 1956.

Six Killed, 13 Hurt Near Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — A giant water tank collapsed and burst open "like a ripe watermelon," dumping a million gallons of water and tons of steel on 30 workmen.

Six of the men were killed, 13 injured.

The workmen were pouring cement Monday into a pit beneath the tank, which was 97 feet high and 50 feet in diameter. The tank fell into a pit which was to have been the foundation for another tank.

"That water moved things around—things like wrench trucks, fork lifts—like they were feathers," said a workman who did not want to be identified.

"Those poor guys down below knew what was happening and saw the water coming, but there was no way they could move," he said.

W. R. Jeffers of Texarkana said, "The thing just burst open, then crumpled ... it was a horrible mess." He said the area around the tank was "covered with wreckage, water, bodies and mud."

W. C. Stacks Jr., construction superintendent for International Paper Co., said the tank split like a watermelon and dropped to the ground. Police said the impact sounded like an ex-

Congress Has Own Group for Protection

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Ralph Nader pacing the corridor and fretting about the labor of his congressional supporters, a House committee has delivered—without a change—its own bill to create a consumer protection agency.

When the doors of the House Government Operations Committee room were opened Monday after a day-long private session full of setbacks for consumer advocate Nader, Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., announced the legislation was approved 24 to 4 with three members voting "present."

"This is out of Kafka," Nader said as he battled unsuccessfully, despite Democratic majorities on all the amendments he backed, for changes he contended are vital to developing an effective agency within the government to work for the interests of consumers.

Teacher Sues for Breach of Contract

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Miss Sarah Calloway of Pine Bluff filed suit Monday in U.S. District Court here charging that the Pine Bluff School Board failed to renew her teaching contract this year because she is black.

Miss Calloway has taught in the Pine Bluff school system for seven years.

Her suit is sponsored by the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Arkansas Education Association. Eugene R. Warren of Little Rock, who is Miss Calloway's attorney, said that this was the first time the AEA has sponsored a discrimination suit like Miss Calloway's.

In her suit, Miss Calloway said she was fired because some white parents did not want her to teach their children.

She was notified in June that her contract would not be renewed.

The board said her contract was not renewed on grounds of inefficiency.

Jury Is Due to Get Self Case Today

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The two-week trial of Harry Bass Jr., 56, of St. Louis, who is charged with conspiring to defraud the government by ordering unauthorized welds in parts for the F-111 swing-wing jet, is due to go to the jury today.

Bass is the president of Self Manufacturing Co. of Walnut Ridge that subcontracted for parts for the fighter-bomber from General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex.

The government has charged that Bass and seven others conspired to hide the defective parts.

Bass' attorneys concluded his defense in U.S. District Court here Monday.

One of the men who has already come to trial, James L. Townley of Hurst, Tex., testified in behalf of Bass Monday.

Townley was acquitted of the charges in an earlier trial. He said that he had been told by one of Self's employees that the defective parts were being hidden from Bass.

Townley was a former quality assurance supervisor for General Dynamics.

Vietnam Vets, Students Hurl Bombs

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese students and disabled veterans hurling firebombs clashed with police today in Saigon and Da Nang in continuing protests against next Sunday's one-man presidential election.

A progovernment demonstration was held in Saigon about the same hour and went off without incident as some 200 persons paraded through downtown streets.

One student and two policemen were injured and four vehicles, two of them American, were firebombed in Saigon. Police arrested about 80 persons but released most of them, sources said.

In Da Nang, where five policemen were wounded by grenades during a street protest Monday, more than 50 students and veterans launched a new demonstration which police dispersed with tear gas.

The demonstrators were reported to have holed up in the Tinh Hoi pagoda, from where they hurled firebombs and police lobbed more tear gas.

A loose coalition of college and high school students and disabled veterans has figured in the recent wave of demonstrations against President Nguyen Van Thieu's decision to run for re-election unopposed. They were joined today by a handful of Buddhist monks.

Thieu has taken some public notice of the protests, increasing security to contain them and appealing in one speech for them to be called off. In a campaign speech Monday night, he also noted his administration's accomplishments in providing benefits to war victims, such as disabled veterans.

With the election five days away, Thieu has yet to make any of the 10 public campaign appearances that he had mapped out. He canceled a visit today to the Saigon Zoo that had been scheduled at about the time the demonstrations were in progress. No reason was given for Thieu's failure to appear, but there was nothing to indicate that the protests had kept Thieu—who often cancels public appearances—at Independence Palace.

Police, while reinforced to cope with the protests, have made no move to crack down hard enough to end them. The demonstrators—badly organized and lacking in numbers—have had no visible impact on the government or on Thieu's election plans.

Casualties Heavy on Both Sides

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops staged a half-dozen assaults along the South Vietnam-Cambodia border today in the third day of an offensive which the Saigon command said has taken more than 400 casualties on both sides.

Casualty figures from the Saigon command for the three-day period claimed 230 North Vietnamese troops killed, more than half of them by U.S. and South Vietnamese air and artillery strikes. Saigon headquarters reported 27 of its troops killed and 173 wounded.

Targets in the latest North Vietnamese rocket and mortar attacks included the U.S. fire support base Pace, and artillery position on the Cambodian border supporting South Vietnamese forces. The base was hit with 11 mortar shells, wounding five Americans, the U.S. command said.

Enemy gunners also fired six 50-pound rockets into the Tay Ninh West Base Camp, 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

The camp is the forward headquarters for South Vietnamese operations inside eastern Cambodia.

Other targets included a South Vietnamese base camp in the Cambodian town of Krek, 85 miles northwest of Saigon and seven miles across the border, and three other positions on both sides of the border.

All the attacks were described as light, with 30 rounds of rocket fire the biggest. Informants said 10 South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded in today's shelling.

The aim of the North Vietnamese drive by elements of two divisions is to pierce the South Vietnamese defenses along the border with Cambodia, to open infiltration corridors and supply routes into the 3rd Military Region and to cut Saigon's troops off from their own rear bases.

The 3rd Military Region includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces.

The enemy has concentrated his attacks along Highway 7, which runs through Krek, and along Route 22 on the South Vietnamese side of the border. Highway 22 is the only overland supply route to South Vietnamese forces at Krek.

Field reports said the North Vietnamese had cut Highway 22 at some points and that supplies to South Vietnamese troops in Cambodia were being flown in by helicopter.

U.S. B52 heavy bombers, meanwhile, stepped up their attacks in eastern Cambodia in efforts to cut off the attacking North Vietnamese from their rear bases.

Vicious Dogs Win Reprieve

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two boxers declared "vicious animals" and condemned to death in the gas chamber of the Municipal Dog Pound, won a last-minute reprieve Monday at the request of an Indianapolis lawyer.

Attorney Ferdinand Samper told Municipal Court Judge B. William Keithly he planned to file a formal petition for a stay of execution in Superior Court.

Perry, 5, and Jack, 3, owned by Columbus Riley, 52, had been sentenced to die Monday for severely biting another man and killing a third dog while the three animals were in the pound.

Samper was asked to intervene by a couple he described as "dog lovers who desire to make a home for Perry and Jack on their Marion County farm."

Solutions Differ on Reveal Crisis

By MIKE SILVERMAN

Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Hubert H. Humphrey and Wilbur Mills have proposed widely differing solutions to local governments' revenue crises in appearances before a convention of 4,000 city officials.

Mills, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, called President Nixon's $5 billion revenue-sharing proposal "utterly unacceptable" and urged a limited federal aid program based on cities' individual needs.

Humphrey, Democratic senator from Minnesota, called for an immediate short-term federal grant of $5 billion to $6 billion to aid the cities, and advocated a long-term, low-interest federal loan program to local communities.

Both men have been mentioned as potential presidential candidates, but both said they are undecided on whether to run.

They made separate appearances Monday before the annual conference of the League of California Cities.

Mills told some 4,000 League delegates that Nixon's revenue-sharing plan "would be wasteful and inefficient" because it would "put our money indiscriminately to all state and local governments without regard to need and without making any attempt to encourage state governments to meet their own problems by improving their tax systems."

He objected to the idea of the federal government distributing its tax revenue to local jurisdictions "without any strings."

This procedure divorces completely the responsibility for raising revenue from the spending of revenue.

Mills favored increased federal aid based on cities' specific needs, and a "piggy back arrangement" for states to collect their income taxes more economically along with federal income tax.

Mills said he hoped to have a bill providing grants to cities out of his committee "in three to six months," but warned that such a measure might be delayed by Nixon's urgent request for tax reform to fight inflation.

Humphrey told a luncheon audience that his National Domestic Development Bill currently in Congress would provide federal credits for local governments to finance needed capital improvements in transportation, health, education and other areas.

"It's time the federal government looked on you as partners instead of adversaries," he said.

Mills told a questioner from the floor after his address that he was "not a candidate at this time," but claimed supporters among potential convention delegates from 28 states.

Humphrey said at a news conference he will decide "by the end of this year or very early next year," whether to again seek the nomination he won in 1968.

Teachers Are Now Showing Some Muscles

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH

AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long considered a soft, somewhat disorganized constituency, the nation's two million school teachers are taking political siting-up exercises and their muscle is beginning to show.

Teacher support was an important factor in several congressional, state legislative and gubernatorial races in November and now the National Education Association is eyeing what it calls the "biggest plum of all—the White House."

A result is that elected office holders, led by the president, are showing new concern for teachers.

Helen Bain, past president of the NEA, called President Nixon an "underachiever" at the NEA's national convention in Detroit last June. The next day White House aides telephoned Detroit suggesting a meeting between Nixon and Donald Morrison, new NEA president.

They haven't met yet, but the quick White House reaction to Mrs. Bain's criticism reflects the concern politicians have for new teacher interest in vote-getting.

Until a few years ago, teacher groups mostly were active in school-bond issues and an occasional local legislative race. But in 1970 teachers in a number of states got involved in state wide partisan politics and found new power at the polls.

Some examples:

—The office of Sen. John V. Tunney gave California teachers major credit for his upset victory over Republican Sen. George Murphy.

—Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio publicly acknowledged teacher help in his victory.

—Teachers strongly supported Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida in defeating incumbent Republican Claude Kirk Jr.

—Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., with teacher support defeated Catherine May, who had served seven terms in the House of Representatives.

The NEA says that in November teachers formally supported six winning governors, eight successful U.S. senatorial candidates, scores of victors in races for the House of Representatives and hundreds of officials elected in local elections.

In many states, teachers won seats in the state legislatures and in California grass-root teacher support was the big difference in the election of Wilson C. Riles, a black, as state superintendent of schools.

Both the NEA, with 1.1 million members, and the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, with 250,000 members, are urging their members to be politically active.

aid based on cities' specific needs, and a "piggy back arrangement" for states to collect their income taxes more economically along with federal income tax.

U.S. Slow in Branding Bad Food

By G. DAVID WALLACE

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government protects chickens and catfish from food containing more than a half part per million of DDT-like chemicals called PCBs. But people can eat chicken or catfish containing 10 times as much before the government does anything.

But then baby cereal and spaghetti dinners may not contain any more PCBs than chicken feed.

Why?

"We had to have some sort of action level," John T. Walden, press officer for the Food and Drug Administration, said Monday.

Walden's explanation of the differing guidelines came after persistent, poisonous PCBs started the government anew on a trail that already led through chicken feed, chickens, turkeys and eggs.

Now the FDA has found the chemical in some shredded wheat, spaghetti dinners, corn meal, mixed baby cereal, grits, noodle dinners and pancake mix. In one sample of shredded wheat the PCB concentration was 48 times the safety level set by federal guidelines. In other foods the concentration ranged from less than the federal guideline to four times the level.

The agency has seized none of the products. In the case of the shredded wheat, Walden explained that the high concentration was in only one sample and the FDA didn't find enough contaminated samples to justify seizure.

The FDA said the contamination originated in containers made from recycled cardboard. The recyclers apparently used a PCB-treated carbonless duplicating paper, Walden said.

The FDA is sampling 15 products packaged in such cardboard.

Walden said it's the speed with which the PCB problem has cropped up that has fostered the differing guidelines for foods. The poultry guidelines were set up first. As the pollutant became more prevalent, the lower guideline was set up for other foods.

"The truth is our scientists—and no scientists—know about PCBs or what to do about it," said Walden.

2nd Rounds of Talks in Ireland

By ANTHONY COLLINGS

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The leaders of Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland prepared for their second round of talks today with no outward evidence of progress toward a political truce aimed at ending the bloodbath in Ulster.

Some observers said it was a good sign the three prime ministers, all under pressure at home not to compromise, were still talking. Even as their discussions went on Monday, violence raged without abate in the northern province.

Britain's Edward Heath hosted the talks at Chequers his country estate outside London. With him were Prime Ministers Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic and Brian Faulkner of Northern Ireland, the British-ruled territory torn by strife between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Lynch said he was happy with Monday's 6 1/2-hour session. But he declined to comment on any concrete progress the three may have made. Neither Heath nor Faulkner commented on the talks.

Cardinal Mindszenty Now in Rome

By DAVID MAZZARELLA

Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP)—Free at last, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary flew into Rome today.

For the last 15 years the Roman Catholic primate of Hungary had been in solitary exile in the U.S. diplomatic mission at Budapest. He fled there in 1956 after five days' freedom during the Hungarian uprising. The Communists in Hungary had sentenced him to life imprisonment on charges of treason, tracing to his opposition to their takeover.

The prelate, who is 79, arrived on a flight from Vienna.

This evidently signaled the end of a long dispute between the Catholic Church and the Communist government of Hungary.

The official Hungarian news agency MTI said:

"In accordance with an agreement between the government of the Hungarian People's Republic and the Holy See, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty left the territory of Hungary for good on Tuesday and traveled to Rome."

The timing apparently had something to do with the third World Council of Bishops, which opens at the Vatican Thursday.

Relations between the Church and the Hungarian regime have been strained for years because of the prelate's exile in the U.S. mission.

There were occasional efforts to work out a solution, but the cardinal was adamant in refusing to leave his exile under conditions which he insisted were humiliating. The Hungarian government sought to have him leave the country on conditions he not speak or write about his relations with the regime.

Last January the cardinal's closest friend and confidant, Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Vienna, revealed that the primate had repeatedly rejected invitations by Pope Paul VI to leave Hungary and, in so doing, keep silent about his argument with the Hungarian Communists.

Cardinal Koenig often visited Cardinal Mindszenty in the U.S. mission in Budapest and was there again recently. The Vienna churchman once said he thought Cardinal Mindszenty would never leave Budapest "because he does not accept being 'pardoned' like a common criminal while he knows he is innocent."

The cardinal crossed into Austria by car at noon. Police officials at Nickelsdorf, the Austrian border crossing point opposite Hegyesalom in Hungary, said they were not permitted to give any information.

An Austrian official said the cardinal was accompanied by a papal nuncio or ambassador, Archbishop Opilio Rossi.

derry surgeons fought to save the life of Pvt. Roger Wilkins, a British soldier shot in the head by terrorists attacking his sentry post near the Catholic Bog-side district.

The violence has left 110 dead in two years, including 24 British soldiers. Troops were the targets of Molotov cocktails, nail bombs and bullets again Monday night. Five soldiers of the Ulster Defense Regiment, a local national guard, were wounded when terrorists ambushed their small truck with a mine and gunfire on a road near Newry.

The illegal Irish Republican Army was suspected of being behind the attacks.

How to handle the IRA, pledged to reunite Northern Ireland with Lynch's Irish Republic to the south, was a main stumbling block at the three-way talks in London.

Faulkner, under pressure from Northern Ireland's dominant Protestants, has repeatedly turned down demands by Lynch and the province's Catholic minority that he stop arresting terrorist suspects without the right of trial.

As talks were going on, Faulkner's troops seized 19 more men for possible internment. They would join 219 already held in Ulster prisons.

Heath was believed exploring a possible compromise between Lynch and Faulkner over the internment issue, which set off the latest wave of violence.

The county extension service is part of the University of Arkansas and serves all branches of agriculture.

Mr. Caldwell said that agriculture is developed to such a stage that one worker now feeds forty three other people, and that chemicals, machinery, and technology make this high production possible.

Poultry, beef, and soybeans are the major sources of income.

In explaining the work of the extension service Mr. Caldwell stated that if just two bushels more soybeans per acre could be produced in Hempstead County it would result in approximately one hundred and fifty three thousand more dollars income.

Other programs included cattle spraying, calf vaccination, rabies control, soil testing, forage testing, water testing, bull testing, chemical weed control, and many others.

There is also a bulletin and plan service for construction of farm homes, barns, sheds, and miscellaneous structures needed on the farm.

Lion Warren Plyer arranged the program.

Final instructions and plans for the Annual Light Bulb Sale Monday, October 4 were handed out by sale chairman David Still.

Birds Falling Out of Sky

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C.

(AP) — Birds continued to fall dead from the sky Monday as wildlife experts tried to figure out what killed hundreds of small birds late last week.

Reports from as far away as 50 miles up the Skeena River from this northern Pacific Coast city indicated that several larger birds—including eagles, owls and ravens—also had been killed. In Prince Rupert, most of the dead birds were warblers and thrushes.

Officials said it could be a week before the results of tests by federal and provincial labs on bodies are available.

Residents first noticed birds flying erratically, crashing into windows and dropping dead last Thursday.

the bill was one of its original authors, Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who charged the committee's rewriting had weakened the legislation. Two proposed amendments lost on tie votes—and a series of Rosenthal's pro-Nader proposals failed, the key one by 20 to 14. This one would have allowed the agency to enter early phases of cases handled by other agencies.

Nader told reporters the committee-approved bill "deals with the tip of the consumer-abuse iceberg—only 10 per cent of anything that matters. Since Holifield has become a de facto member of the Republican party, there's a good chance it will be overturned on the floor."

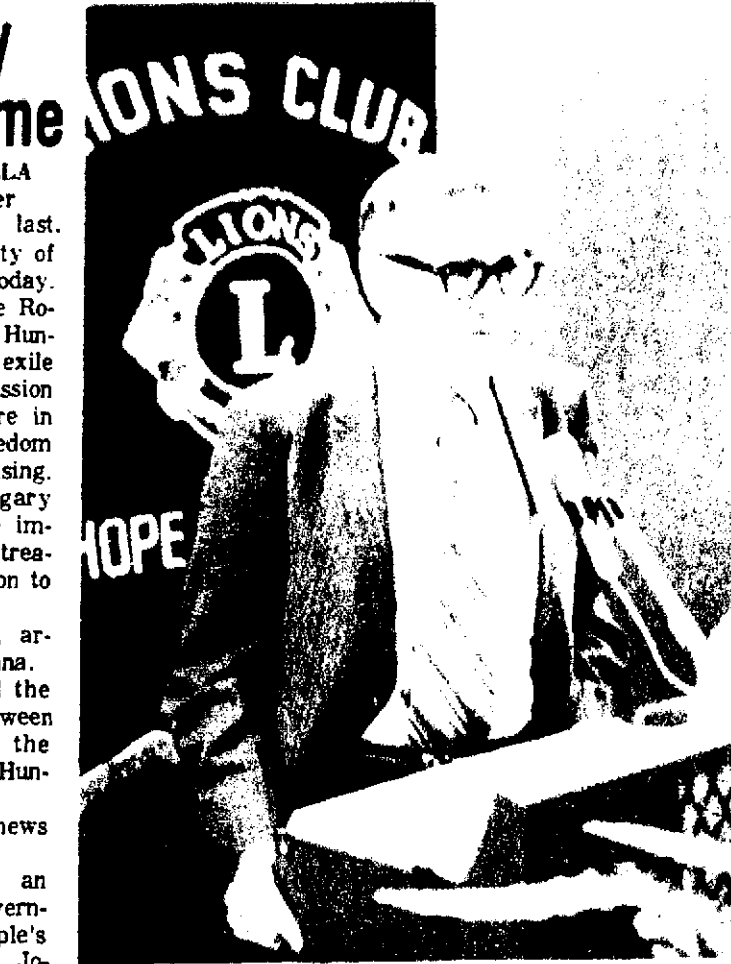

But Holifield said the bill "will not satisfy Ralph Nader or the U.S. Chamber of Commerce but, if enacted into law, it will do a job for the American consumer. I regard this bill as landmark legislation. With its enactment, a new era will commence in consumer protection."

The chairman said the committee rejected amendments that would have changed the concept of the bill in two fundamental ways:

—"To arm the new consumer agency with powers of direct subpoena and unlimited intervention, enabling it to go on fishing expeditions, dominate the work of other government agencies, and become an instrument of regulation rather than of advocacy."

"To disarm the new consumer agency by barring it from any intervention in other agency proceedings, limiting its role essentially to that of 'friend of the court.'"

The bill would set up the agency as an independent unit of government to be a consumer's advocate before other federal agencies and to promote consumer interests; give legal status to the White House's Office of Consumer Affairs, and create a 15-member committee.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — The first national Nielsen ratings of the new television season hit the industry Monday with an impact similar to the winds of Hurricane Doria.

During the Sept. 13-19 period, when the new programs of all three networks were having their premieres, it appears that most viewers were visiting old friends and watching old movies instead of looking at new arrivals—and snubbing some important movie stars newly arrived in televisionland.

Most popular program of the week was "Marcus Welby, M.D.," a situation likely to prevail throughout the season since the ABC series not only has a lot of devotees but no network competition during the final 30 minutes of its hour. CBS and NBC return to local programming during that time period.

Flip Wilson of NBC came in second, and CBS's broadcast of the 1967 hit movie, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" was in show position. Other programs among the top 10 in popularity that week included "Gunsmoke," "Laugh in," a Bob Hope special, the ABC "Movie of the Week" and an old John Wayne western.

The only new program in that illustrious company was "Columbo," the miniseries starring Peter Falk which is a part of NBC's "Mystery Movie."

Audience measurements during premiere week are considered to be insignificant in terms of the ultimate success or failure of programs. They do hold, however, some fascinating clues about the public's interests.

For instance, a new situation comedy starring a teen-age singing idol, Bobby Sherman, and called "Getting Together" wound up almost on the bottom of the list of 68 programs. And "Shirley's World" starring Shirley MacLaine, a movie star, was 65 on the roster. "The Jimmy Stewart Show," ranking 51, was obviously buried by competition from the Katharine Hepburn-Spencer Tracy movie. Anthony Quinn's "The Man and the City" was also far down the list.

Glenn Ford and "Cade's County," on the other hand, attracted a big audience—his premiere came in 11th. The new "Dick Van Dyke Show" was 14th and James Garner's "Nichols" was 19th. Both stars, however, are old friends of the TV audience.

Then there was "Funny Face," starring a practically unknown newcomer, Sandy Duncan. It ranked 20th. It came to television on the heels of an intensive publicity campaign—and it didn't hurt to be tucked between CBS' hit "All in the Family" and the Van Dyke show.

CAN "HAIR SUIT" KEEP HIM HIRSUITE?
Dear Bottels:

My boss explained that the raise he promised me was out, due to Mr. Nixon's cold spell. I understand. It's a part-time job after school and on weekends, and I'm glad to have it, even at starting pay.

But it seems like the freeze should work two ways. Like when he hired me, my hair was chin length—which it still is. Even my folks don't complain. Well, the boss called me in yesterday and said, "No haircut, no job," because a couple of customers beefed.

I don't get it. If the government can freeze my wages, why can't I freeze the length of my hair? Could I bring suit, and to whom? —HIRSUITE GUY

Dear Hirsute:
Will a "hair suit" keep you hirsute? I'm afraid the wage and price control folks might call this hair-splitting and suggest a trim.

While I don't agree with your employer, it's his ball park and you'll have to play the game his way or get benched. —HELEN

Dear Hirsute:
Maybe not. Your boss isn't really un-cool—or he wouldn't have hired a long-hair in the first place. Maybe a minor trim, with a half-way kidding letter about "one good freeze deserves another," might thaw him. —SUE

Dear Sue:
I gave a party last Saturday night. My folks (who trust me) went out for the evening. After all, our average age is 18 and our crowd doesn't get drunk, though some of the guys brought beer and I served wine coolers.

But a couple I didn't know very well lit up joints and started passing them around. Nobody seemed concerned. As one guy said, the cops don't bother you any more unless you're dealing: A little weed at a party is expected.

But I thought "paranoid." Besides, my folks have a strong sense of smell, and I'd like to keep their trust.

What do you do when friends bring grass to your party? —APPREHENSIVE
Dear Apprehensive:
Tell 'em politely if they want to blow weed, take a walk down the street. (And don't come back "holding.") Most people these days understand and respect your attitude toward grass, but if

Cato's Plans Founders Day Sale

Mrs. LuVegia Worthey, Manager of Cato's in Hope, Ark., has announced plans for the Annual Founder's Day Sale. This event—conceived to thank the people here for their participation in the growth of Cato Stores—is a special celebration this year in honor of Cato's 25th anniversary.

Although Cato's was founded 25 years ago, it's real beginning occurred back in 1915—over 55 years ago, when a young man, W. H. Cato, walked into his father's general store on Main Street in Ridge Spring, S.C., and started to work as a clerk. He had just finished his first year as a teacher in a one room school house and had arrived home to help in the store so his father could get on with spring planting on the family's farm.

It was his first experience in merchandising and he never went back to teaching. Years later Mr. Cato said, "I knew before the end of that first day there was no question about what I wanted to do the rest of my life."

"A lot has happened in 25 years. We now keep merchandising records on electronic computers instead of on the back of brown paper bags. We have buyers and designers searching out the best values and fashions all over the country, instead of waiting for the drummer to get off the train with his sample cases. We have charge accounts and layaway plans instead of taking chickens and eggs in trade."

"But all the new fangled gadgets are there for only one purpose... that is to help us live up to our original principle—service, satisfaction guaranteed, and friendliness."

W. A. Hollenbach, Jr., Vice President of the Cato Corporation, explained Cato's interest in Hope, Ark. "We prefer to locate our stores in Southeastern towns, where in recent years customers have expressed a desire for newer and

Now 25 years after the founding of Cato stores, W. H. Cato, Jr., President, following in his father's footsteps, said, "We still live up to Dad's original principle—service, satisfaction guaranteed, and friendliness."

Cards Hold on to Beat Jets 17-10

By PAUL LEBAR
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — All-pro Larry Wilson called it "rooting in" and tackle Fred Heron a "dive" as the St. Louis Cardinals held on to beat the New York Jets 17-10 in Monday night's second weekly National Football League television feature.

Boosted by an early surge, the Cardinals' biggest play came midway the third quarter while protecting a 17-7 edge.

New York had the ball inches from the goal line and Jets quarterback Al Woodall handed off to pile-driving John Riggins, who buried over center.

But there he was suspended in mid-air, first by Wilson and later by right linebacker Rocky Rosema as the Cards held on and limited the Jets to a field goal the rest of the way.

"Give it to those guys down in front," said Wilson.

"They went in and rooted the offensive line and pushed Riggins' jump line back a foot," Wilson added. "If he'd jumped from where the ball was, he'd have made it."

Heron's description of the Cardinals' "dive" was that aimed at center John Schmitt's legs. "Then we crawl in," he explained.

After "crawling in," as Heron put it, and receiving only a 26-yard punt from deep in its own territory, St. Louis permitted only Bobby Howfield's 25-yard field goal near start of the fourth quarter.

During a hot, feverish night in Busch Stadium, the Cardinals had built a 14-0 lead 4:48 into the second quarter on the hot hand of Beathard. Selected to start just before the kickoff, the 29-year-old quarterback engineered drives of 88 and 80 yards resulting in touchdowns both culminated by Cid Edwards on one-yard plunges.

Beathard completed nine of 17 aerials during the early assault, the barrage including one of 51 yards to fleet John Gilliam carrying to New York's six yard line.

Beathard cooled down after the half to finish 11 for 23, but the aerials consumed 222 yards compared to 151 yards on 16 of 28 by the Jets' tall Al Woodall.

Woodall, although on target, failed to drive the Jets across the goal until rookie Phil Wise's 41-yard kickoff return ignited a 53-yard push.

Woodall, the Jets' fill-in for Joe Namath, then hit the 233-pound Riggins and veteran Don Maynard with sideline passes and sent George Nock three yards to the touchdown.

St. Louis moved back with Jim Bakken's 19-yard field goal 23 seconds before the half and afterward made the key stop of rookie Riggins the big second-half play.

Hogs Working Out a Little Longer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Razorbacks worked out for two hours Monday in preparation for Saturday's game with TCU.

Coach Bo Schembechler didn't get too worked up about his Michigan Wolverines being tabbed No. 2 in this week's Associated Press college football poll.

"We're No. 2? Oh, is that so?" he replied during Monday afternoon's practice.

But, then, he added, "It's about time they jiggled them up."

Nebraska tightened its grip on first place while Michigan, buoyed by a 38-0 shellacking of UCLA, switched places with Notre Dame, which dropped to fourth following an 8-7 decision over Purdue.

Nebraska, 34-7 victor over Texas A&M, garnered 44 first-place votes and 1,064 points from the 55-man nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters. Michigan earned 840 points.

The remaining first-place votes were distributed as follows: Michigan and Texas, three each; Auburn and Colorado, two, and Notre Dame, one.

Hanging Out the College Grid Wash

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

"No guts; Parseghian had no guts!"

That snarling remark was made on Nov. 19, 1966, by a disgruntled Michigan State fan after Notre Dame ran out the clock and settled for a 10-10 tie rather than go for broke in the closing seconds.

Parseghian's thoughts must have flashed back across the years Saturday when Notre Dame recovered a Purdue fumble in the end zone with three minutes left and suddenly found themselves trailing by only 7-6.

Should he go for a tie and face the "no guts" charge again? After all, Notre Dame won the national championship in 1966 despite the tie and Nebraska did the same last year, when tied by Southern Cal.

This time, Parseghian went for the whole ball of wax and came away an 8-7 winner when Pat Steenberge lofted a two-point conversion pass to Mike Creaney.

"We scored so suddenly," Parseghian said. "If it was early in the fourth quarter the chances are we would have gone for one point, with time to score again. I looked at the clock and saw only 2:58 left. The field conditions (rain and sodden, chewed-up turf) didn't give us any choice because it was unlikely we'd score again."

"The difference between a one-point victory and a one-point loss can be the difference between a national championship and being at the bottom of the Top Ten or lower."

Some 32 dual-affiliation television stations were confronted with a choice this week—the Notre Dame-Michigan State game or the baseball playoffs. Twenty-four chose the football game.

The last two years ABC-TV went with the Alabama-Mississippi game at night but this year decided to buck baseball.

College football attendance has cracked the 700,000 barrier. Saturday's 10 largest crowds totaled a record 714,601, with UCLA-at-Michigan tops at 89,177. The old mark was 690,257 on Oct. 12, 1968.

The entire Corps of Cadets of the U.S. Military Academy greeted the Army football team after the 16-13 triumph over Georgia Tech, the first since the 1970 opener. The corps marched for 1½ miles in front of the team bus.

What were Coach Tom Cahill's thoughts after the long winless drought? "With 1:58 left I said, 'I hope we win.' When the gun went off it only took me two steps to get to the dressing room."

On Tech's final play, they sent a 6-foot-4 receiver into the end zone against Army's 5-11 Mercer Ferguson. But, said Cahill, Ferguson "suddenly grew 7 feet tall" and intercepted the pass with three seconds remaining.

Another of Army's stars was defensive back Matt Wotell, who is 6 feet and 175 pounds but wears size 26 pants. Unfortunately, the smallest pair of college-size football pants is 28. Wotell uses a special belt to prevent any embarrassment.

Ever hear of a team punting on fourth down and goal to go? It happened Saturday in Northwestern's 12-6 victory over Syracuse.

The losers had a first down at the Northwestern nine-yard line but two 15-yard penalties and three unsuccessful scrimmage plays made it fourth-and-goal at the 46. Ergo, the punt.

Dodgers and Giants Going to the Wire

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Winning the National League West pennant can be as easy as 1-2-3 for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I'd like to win three in a row and take our chances," says Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston.

That's just about what the Dodgers will have to do as they start their season-ending series with the Houston Astros tonight.

Of course, it's not necessary that the Dodgers win all three. The Giants, who hold a one-game lead, begin a three-game set with the last-place San Diego Padres and a lot depends on what they do. The Giants hold an 11-4 advantage in their season series.

"We are one game behind with three to play so it's quite simple," says Los Angeles first baseman Wes Parker. "The Giants will have to lose at least one game—and beyond that, we're absolutely helpless to do anything."

In Monday night's action, only one game was played as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Mets 6-1 in 10 innings. Pinch-hitter Matty Alou snapped a 1-1 tie with a two-run double as the Cardinals scored five runs in the 10th.

The Giants find themselves in this do-or-die position because of an inability to win the big ones in September. They lost 15 of 22 games, including eight straight meetings with the Dodgers, and let slip most of an 8½-game lead.

It hasn't been all the Giants' fault, though. In the same span, the hot Dodgers won 15 of 22—including those crucial eight against the Giants and five straight over another West toughie, the Atlanta Braves.

Bill Singer, the injury-plagued right-hander suffering through a disappointing 9-17 season, will start for the Dodgers against Houston rookie James Rodney Richards in the opener at Los Angeles.

The Dodgers deal their ace left-hander Al Downing against Houston's Don Wilson in the second game Wednesday night and come back with Don Sutton against either Wade Blasingame or Ken Forsch on Thursday.

Gaylord Perry is the Giants' choice tonight at San Diego. He'll face rookie Ed Acosta. San Francisco sends young Don Carriethers against the Padres' Clay Kirby Wednesday night and Juan Marichal will pitch the Giants' finale, dueling San Diego's tatar southpaw, Dave Roberts.

Discouraged by Money Team Losing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Although he's discouraged by the amount of money his team is losing, the principal owner of the San Diego Padres says he wants to keep the National League club where it is.

"We're not going to hit people over the head, but if the city thinks major league baseball is worthwhile, we'd like to keep it here," financier C. Arnold Smith said.

That feeling was shared by Padres president E.J. "Buz" Bavasi following a meeting in Los Angeles Monday with former U.S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, attorney Eugene L. Wyman and unidentified parties interested in buying the team to move to Washington, D.C.

"At the moment we're in San Diego and we hope to stay

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys announced Monday that rains have washed out the possibility of the Oct. 11 game with the New York Giants being played in the new Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys say the stadium's first pro football game will be Oct. 24, when the Cowboys host the New England Patriots. The Giants contest, like next Sunday's tilt against the Washington Redskins, has been moved to the Cotton Bowl.

Top Seeded Rod Laver Upset Victim

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Jeff Borowiak of Lafayette, Calif., provided the biggest upset and top-seeded Rod Laver had a struggle following a 30-day layoff during the first-round matches of the Redwood Bank International Open Tennis championships Monday. Borowiak, who learned his tennis at the Berkeley tennis club, returned to his home court and polished off Australian veteran Fred Stolle, 6-2, 6-4.

Australia's Laver, defeated South Africa's Fred McMillen, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3 in one of two matches played in San Francisco. Borowiak shrugged off his victory. "It might be a little bit of an upset because Stolle has been a world champ. But everyone knows this isn't the Fred Stolle of five years ago."

Laver, considered the world's top tennis player, admitted the layoff added to his trouble. "The time off helped me physically, but it dulled my mental alertness," he said.

Australia's fourth seeded Ken Rosewall breezed past Tom Edler of Los Angeles 6-1, 6-2, in the other San Francisco action.

Two matches each day are played in San Francisco while the others are being held in Berkeley.

Second seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa advanced with a 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Australia's Phil Dent. Seeded stars Tom Okker, Jan Codes, Arthur Ashe, Mart Riessen and Cliff Richey play first round matches Tuesday.

Other clashes Monday found Pakistan's Haroon Rahim besting Chile's Patricio Cornejo, 6-2, 6-2; Australia's Roy Emerson topping countryman Ray Keldie, 6-4, 6-2; and South Africa's Ray Moore defeating Australia's John Alexander, 6-4, 6-3.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Rafer Johnson, the 1960 Olympic decathlon champion has joined the Continental Telephone Corp. as director of community affairs, the firm announced Monday.

Falcons Are Victims of the Freeze

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The Atlanta Falcons pro football team has been charged in a federal suit with violating President Nixon's wage-price freeze by boosting the price of 1971 football tickets.

The Justice Department action was the nation's third suit and the first in the eight-state Southeast region arising from the economic measures taken by the President to restore the national economy.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, chairman of the Cost of Living Council, said he was "disappointed that such a flagrant violation of the wage-price freeze should occur in the world of professional sports, which has benefited from widespread public support."

Connally, who has advocated "get-tough" enforcement policy during the freeze, added that he is "hopeful the owners of the Falcons will not prolong this case and will quickly make restitution to their many loyal supporters."

Officials of the Atlanta team were not talkative Monday immediately after the suit was filed. "I have no knowledge of it (the suit)," said Frank E. Wall, president of the National Football League club. He declined further comment.

Another team official said fans have been encouraged to hold their ticket stubs until the dispute is resolved.

A federal attorney attached to the Southeastern regional headquarters of the Office of Emergency Preparedness in Atlanta said the team was cited for increasing upper and lower level seating cost from $6 to $7.50 and boosting club level seats from $10 to $12.50.

William P. Gaffney, assistant U. S. attorney, said Falcon officials have estimated they would be required to refund $380,000 to fans who have attended two games already played by the team and those who have made seating arrangements for other matches to be played during the remainder of the 90-day freeze.

The Falcons Saturday filed suit in the same court seeking a declaratory judgement that the ticket price increase does not violate the wage-price freeze order.

The two other legal actions connected with the price-wage freeze were taken against a Louisiana school district which granted a pay hike for teachers and against a Texas landlord who boosted rent on two apartments.

Cougar Cager Wants to Be Traded

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—George Lehmann, has asked the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association to trade him to another club.

"His feeling was that I was discriminating against him," said Cougar coach Tom Meschery Monday of the 6-3, 185-pound guard who led the ABA in three-point field goals last season.

"He was wrong," Meschery said. "I think he's a very gutsy player on the court and he'll help some other team. We will try to place him with the best possible team that we can make a deal with."

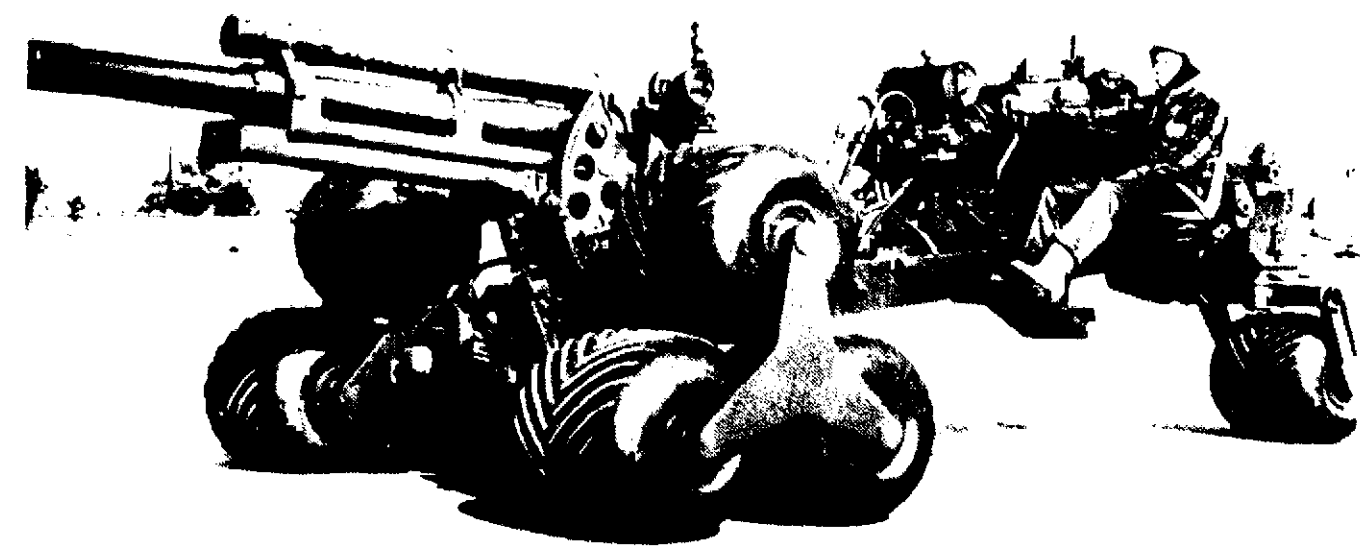

Lehmann did not show up for a game last Saturday after playing only four minutes in Friday night's 106-104 loss to the Baltimore Bullets. The Cougars suspended him.

"All I can say at this time is that I haven't retired or quit basketball," Lehmann said Monday night. "I just asked to be traded."

Fellow Has to Change, Says Bryant

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—"A fellow's got to change with the times," says Paul "Bear" Bryant, coach of the seventh-ranked Crimson Tide of Alabama.

"If you stand still these days," he adds, "everybody will trot on by."

Bryant has not stood still, and as a result Alabama is back as a national power after a lackluster 6-5-1 season in 1970. The Tide won its third game last Saturday, a 38-0 victory over Florida.

Just before the start of fall practice this year Bryant installed a version of the Texas Wishbone-T offense, and the Tide has rolled over its first three opponents.

"I'd say this team is even—or ahead—of our 11-0 teams of 1961 or 1966 at this stage," Bryant commented. "They are executing well and doing what we ask."

Like the 1961 team, which used an option attack in which the quarterback, the late Pat Trammell, opted for the run much more than the pass, this year's Crimson Tide has done nearly all of its rolling on the ground.

Quarterback Terry Davis has thrown only 14 passes in Alabama's first three games, completing 12. He prefers to hand the ball off to a stable of outstanding runners, headed by Johnny Musso but also including Ellis Beck, Joe LaBue and Steve Bisceglia.

Musso, nicknamed the "Italian Stallion," pried up 97 yards on 21 carries in the romp over Florida, scoring four touchdowns on short runs. But even to superstar Musso, Bryant is a living legend.

"I read about him as a kid in Birmingham," Musso mused. "But he's really human, no matter what you hear."

According to Musso, Bryant has eased his ways from the time when playing football at Alabama was supposed to be something like living in a concentration camp—on scholarship.

"Our coaches have rap sessions with us," Musso observed. "They listen and will make changes if they figure we've got a good point."

But the Bear always makes the final decision. "When everybody has had their say, then he decides," Musso said.

Even with Musso, Davis and the others, the strength of this Alabama team is its defensive unit. The Crimson Tide limited John Reeves, Florida's high-lytouted quarterback, to just 42 yards through the air.

Alabama's defense is just as effective against the run. ABA last season in three-point goals, Lehmann lead the league in three-point field goal percentage and was fifth in assists.

He averaged 17.3 points per game last season.

She Rescued Some Animals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—When Mrs. Jack Rael heard allegations that the city animal shelter treated stray dogs inhumanely, she set out to rescue some of them.

Over the weekend she paid $85 to bail out 25 dogs, all but one of them about to be killed because nobody had claimed them. Mrs. Rael, who has three dogs of her own, took the strays to a kennel at a cost of $250 a week.

"I will give the dogs free of charge to anyone who will give them a good home," she said Monday. By today five had homes.

Archery Deer Season Long in Arkansas

Arkansas has one of the longest deer seasons for archery in the nation. This year it is open October 1 through January 31, 1972. The limit is two of either sex. The limit may be filled the same day if the bow hunter is that lucky.

Calvin J. Caldwell, County Extension Agent, says the hunter must be licensed and must immediately tag the deer with the tag provided before moving it. Resident hunters under 16 years of age and holders of lifetime licenses are to report to a wildlife officer for tags. In addition, any person killing a legal deer must report to a commission checking station in the zone where the kill was made and give information as to the area of kill, size, sex, etc.

The bow hunter must use arrows with a blade of ¾ inch minimum width, and the weight or pull of the bow must not be less than 40 pounds pull at 28 inches.

Controversy Continues Between Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The controversy between tennis stars Rosemary Casals and Billie Jean King and Jack Kramer continues into its second set with shotmaking by both sides.

The women walked out of the Pacific Southwest Tennis tournament here during their finals singles match in protest over rulings by a line judge.

Monday, tournament director Kramer said he had turned the case over to the discipline committee of the USLTA, and the prize money, $4,000 for the winner, $2,500 for the runnerup, would be withheld until the USLTA decided upon possible fines or suspensions of the two women.

"They'll get nothing if I can help it," he said.

The women, who are in Phoenix this week to play in the Thunderbird Tennis Tournament, have reacted to Kramer's volley with a stiff return.

Miss Casals said, "Kramer is being silly about the whole thing."

Mrs. King fumed. "I think Jack Kramer basically doesn't like women's tennis." The two announced they had retained a lawyer to help them fight for their prize money.

Cycle Champ Has Not Fear of Death

ROME (AP)—"I have no fear of death," says Giacomo Agostini, 30-year-old Italian movie star, playboy and bon vivant who also happens to be a 10-time world motorcycling champion.

Why not? "Because it doesn't help to win."

In a country with a history of producing great motorcyclists—including nine-time world champion Carlo Ubbiali—Agostini has surpassed them all.

For one thing, Ubbiali won his titles in the slower 125 and 250 CC classes, whereas Agostini races in the heavier, faster and more dangerous 350 and 500 CC classes, zooming around the treacherous courses at speeds of 120 miles per hour.

His detractors say the success is due not to the man but to the machine. Some sportswriters claim Agostini's MV Agusta cycle is 15-20 miles per hour faster than anything else on the market.

But regardless, someone still has to pilot the machine—and at this, Agostini is in a class by himself.

He works hard for his victories, examining each race course on foot, by day and by night. He studies the bumps and curves like Jack Nicklaus lining up a putt on the 18th at Augusta National.

Then there is the everpresent danger. "Only one unnoticed crack in the asphalt is enough to say 'Addio,'" says Agostini, who remains relatively unscathed despite six accidents. "But I have no fear of death," he quickly adds.

The fruits of his triumphs are many: appearances in three movies, a sleek Dino 2400 car, a yacht, an apartment house complex, an enormous playboy's penthouse, earnings of $80,000 a year from racing plus a wide assortment of endorsements, one of which earns him $64,000 per year.

But this motorcycling giant is only 5-foot-3, and friends say this lack of height distresses him. He admits to wearing specially-made shoes, but insists the heels are only an inch high.

"He is not short at all," contends his current girl friend. "His legs are a bit shorter compared to the rest of his body, but he is beautiful just the same."

Agostini basks in the attention. "To be ugly would worry me to death," he declared.

Sometimes the attention is somewhat extraordinary. In Naples last year, a burglar continuously baffled police by giving them the slip via motorcycle. He called himself "Agostino the Mad," in tribute to the champion.

Then there is his entourage of belles, said to be enormous. One girl almost disrobed in public, just to capture Agostini's attention.

He gave her an autograph.

Bar Group Wants Arkansan

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The executive committee of the Arkansas Bar Association has sent a telegram to President Nixon asking him to pick Edward Wright, a Little Rock lawyer, for one of two vacancies now on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Wright was the president of the American Bar Association last year.

The telegram said that Wright "has all of the outstanding qualifications necessary for service on the highest court."

"He is recognized by lawyers and laymen alike as one of the most respected attorneys in the United States," the telegram said.

The telegram was sent Monday.

Women Netters Are Fined for Walkout

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A walkoff staged by women's tennis stars Billy Jean King and Rosemary Casals in Los Angeles last weekend is over and ended with both women being fined $1,000 apiece, Gladys Heldman, founder of the women's pro tennis tour said Monday night.

She said both Mrs. King and Miss Casals had agreed to the fines.

The two walked off the court in Sunday's final match of the Southwest Open Tennis Championships in Los Angeles when tournament officials refused to dismiss a linesman whose call drew objections from both women.

Tournament director Jack Kramer withheld prize money. Winner of the match would have received $4,000 and the runnerup, $2,500.

Miss Casals said Monday in Phoenix that she and Mrs. King had hired an attorney to get the prize money.

Only this motorcycling giant is 5-foot-3, and friends say this lack of height distresses him. He admits to wearing specially-made shoes, but insists the heels are only an inch high.

"He is not short at all," contends his current girl friend. "His legs are a bit shorter compared to the rest of his body, but he is beautiful just the same."

Agostini basks in the attention. "To be ugly would worry me to death," he declared.

Sometimes the attention is somewhat extraordinary. In Naples last year, a burglar continuously baffled police by giving them the slip via motorcycle. He called himself "Agostino the Mad," in tribute to the champion.

Texas Turns Attention to Moore

AUSTIN (AP)—Passes and tailback Bobby Moore figure to keep Texas defenders busy next Saturday, says Longhorn coach Darrell Royal.

"We'll be double busy trying to corral" Moore, Royal told a news conference Monday.

Royal said if anyone doubted Moore's ability to catch and run he would be glad to take them down the hall to the film room where Longhorn coaches were watching footage of Oregon games.

"Their game is pass," Royal said.

Asked if he had heard about Oregon quarterback Dan Fouts' injury, Royal said he had been told Fouts left the Stanford game last Saturday with an injury. But Royal said, "his replacement will find a way to get the ball to Moore."

"This is the most elusive guy we've looked at in some time," Royal added.

Royal said Moore "is cut from the same grade of cloth" as Mell Renfro, former Oregon star who played in Oregon's 25-13 loss to the Longhorns in 1962.

Royal said the only difference between the two is that Moore is "2 or 3 inches taller and 20 pounds heavier."

Renfro is now a cornerback with the Dallas Cowboys.

Royal still wasn't sure whether quarterback Eddie Phillips—who missed the Tech game with a pulled leg muscle and sprained toe—would start against Oregon. He said, however, "We could have turned him loose Saturday except for the foot."

Because of the pulled muscle, Phillips has rested the past 3½ weeks, with the exception of the UCLA game Sept. 18 when he sped for 142 yards rushing and tossed a 36-yard touchdown pass. He hurt his toe in that game.

Sub Donnie Wigginton guided Texas to its 28-0 victory over Tech and bruised his hand slightly.

More seriously injured was co-captain Stan Mauldin, who hurt his knee and is out indefinitely. All-American halfback candidate Jim Bertelsen, fullback Bobby Callison, defensive tackle Greg Ploetz and linebacker Tommy Woodard.

Royal said Bertelsen "fell on the point of his elbow and jammed his shoulder back up."

The Longhorn coach said he thought all would play against Oregon.

Callison "had his second solid performance," Royal said, and he singled out Ploetz and halfback Alan Lowry on defense.

Royal said films showed that Ploetz, only 5 feet 10 and 200 pounds, made a crucial second-down tackle in a goal line stand near the Longhorn 10. It was a draw play, Royal said, indicating it would have been a touchdown except for Ploetz' tackle.

On third down Ploetz tied up two blockers on third down when Tech just made a yard.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Don't Treat Them Yourself

Dear Dr. Lamb—Would you give us a write-up on piles, the tortuous bleeding kind. Please tell the best way to handle the situation if there is a best way.

Dear Reader — Piles and hemorrhoids are the same thing. This is one of the oldest and most frequent problems of mankind. Piles comes from the Latin PILA meaning ball, a familiar sensation to the afflicted and hemorrhoid comes from Greek meaning blood flow or bleeding hemorrhoids.

The main cause is gravity, and man's upright posture may be one good reason to live in space, free of gravity. Animals usually do not have hemorrhoids.

You can do a simple experiment and understand why. Remove any constriction from around the wrist, then let your hand down at your side. Notice how the veins stand out. This is from the pressure of the blood below the heart. Now raise the back of your hand to the level of your eyes and see the veins collapse.

At points below the heart, the veins are put under pressure and distend, hence we have varicose veins in the legs, but not in the arms, and hemorrhoids (varicose veins of the rectum). In a cow, for example, the rectum is above the heart which is in the bottom of the chest and the cow won't have distended veins or hemorrhoids.

Anything that contributes to distention of the veins around the rectum can be a factor in causing hemorrhoids. Thus childbirth is a factor in women. Poor bowel habits with straining at the stool is a frequent factor. Poor muscle tone leads to distended veins. A person with poor lower abdominal muscle tone - "the pot" - often has poor tone of the seat muscles and hemorrhoids.

Hemorrhoids inside the muscular sphincter (internal hemorrhoids) do not cause pain, unless they become so large they protrude outside, then you will know it. Internal hemorrhoids cause bleeding. Sometimes they can be treated with injections that dilate and scar the dilated veins. This usually takes several injections. This treatment cannot be as effective

"How was I to know?" lamented South. "I couldn't go wrong if the trumps didn't split 3-0. I guarded against three in the East hand but West held them."

The answer to South's complaint is that he couldn't tell who held the three trumps, but that he could ensure his contract against everything except an 8-1 spade split by playing his ace of diamonds at trick two.

The way South played the trumps, West was able to gain the lead and play a heart through dummy.

Now, shift the trumps over to East. South plays his ace of diamonds and sees that he must lose a trump trick. This doesn't worry him at all. He proceeds to lead a second trump to dummy's king. Then he cashes his second high spade and starts to run clubs. East can trump the fourth club or not. If he doesn't, South throws him on lead by playing a trump to his queen.

Either way, East is on lead and finds himself with the Hobson's choice between a spade lead to allow South to

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Lobsters are marine crustaceans with large pincer-like claws of unequal size adapted to crushing their prey. The World Almanac notes that growing lobsters must "shed" their shells before increasing in size, which leaves them vulnerable until the new shell forms. They have a remarkable ability to restore a lost leg or claw.

COSTS BRING CHANGES

NEW YORK (AP) — Rising crime rates, city taxes, rents and trucking costs are driving the women's coat and suit makers, a major portion of the garment industry, out of the city.

In the past five years one out of every four companies manufacturing women's suits and coats have closed or moved out of the city, reports the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This city is known as the capital of the garment industry.

Senate Opens Hearings on Press Freedom

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The right of newsmen not to disclose confidential sources is a "precondition of the unfettered dissemination of the news," Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., said today as a Senate subcommittee opened hearings on freedom of the press.

"It is axiomatic," Pearson said in testimony prepared for the subcommittee on constitutional rights, "that there can be no dissemination of information without collection of information."

"Therefore, unreasonable governmental interference with the collection of newsworthy information is inimical to a free press."

Pearson said the Supreme Court has never held that newsmen have a right to protect confidential sources. But he said 17 states have adopted laws protecting their right to do so.

"In those states where the privilege has been effective for a number of years," he said, "there is no evidence to indicate that law enforcement officials and prosecutors have been hamstrung in ferreting out crime."

"The press cannot serve as an investigative organization for two masters: the government and the public," he said.

Other opening-day witnesses included Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, and Harding Bancroft, general counsel of The New York Times.

Pearson and Whalen are sponsoring legislation to establish by law the right of newsmen to refuse to disclose confidential sources of information.

Subcommittee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he hoped the hearings would "engender a new appreciation for the central importance of a free and untrammelled press to a free society."

Ervin said issues to be explored at the hearings, expected to extend for several weeks, include "the increased use of subpoenas to require testimony by reporters and production of their notes."

He listed other issues of special concern as:

—"The use of false press credentials by investigative arms of government."

—"The problem, exemplified by the recent New York Times and Washington Post cases, of reconciling national security and foreign diplomacy with the 1st Amendment prohibition against prior restraints," a reference to the Nixon administration's attempt to prevent newspaper publication of the Pentagon papers.

—"The increasing amount of government control and influence over the broadcasting press and the content of broadcasting."

Ervin said that above these issues "lies another, more general and more serious one ... the growing deterioration of the relationship between the press and government."

Revolutionaries Are Revolting

By ERNESTINE GUGLIELMO

JUST LIKE THE FILLMORE—The show was scheduled for 8:00, but at the start of the concert only a quarter of the seats were filled. Young people with wild hairdos, dressed in jeans and bright shirts drifted in and out during the first group's performance. Finally there was a full house and thousands of young people got into the music mood.

Legs dangling from the balcony looked like denim fringe skirting the traditional concert hall. The no-smoking signs went unheeded. And the cloud of smoke that filled the hall was made up of more than tobacco fumes.

It was a nostalgic night for the people who knew and loved the Fillmore. This night it was Carnegie Hall. Leonard Bernstein would have wept.

THE ROCK AND ROLL bill at Carnegie Hall included three rock groups: Wishbone Ash, The Jimi Hendrix Experience and The Jimi Hendrix Experience. Listening to the group would have been the price of admission. Wishbone Ash is a British group comprised of three guitarists and a singer. They did some of the best rock 'n' roll of the year. Their second album, "Wishbone Ash," was the audience favorite.

The Jimi Hendrix Experience did a number called "Don't Let Me Mislead You." The group was the first to play "Don't Let Me Mislead You" in the title they

Mrs. Ike Has a Very Happy Birthday

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former first lady Mamie Eisenhower was showered with praise and gifts at a nostalgic diamond-jubilee dinner party with President Nixon playing "Happy Birthday" at the piano.

Calling it a "wonderful occasion," wiping away some joyful tears, she told the gathering of some 800 friends and officials of Nixon and Eisenhower administrations:

"I don't mind being 75 when you all come to see me like this."

President and Mrs. Nixon, just back from a 5,000-mile trip to Alaska, arrived in the midst of the after-dinner entertainment and stayed 90 minutes to salute Mrs. Eisenhower.

The Monday night dinner cost $100 a plate to launch a Mamie Doud Eisenhower Scholarship Fund for Eisenhower College in Seneca Falls, N.Y. The college is named for the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

On stage, alongside a huge pink-and-red birthday cake aglow with candles, Nixon hailed Mrs. Eisenhower as a "great lady," and praised her strength in standing by her husband in difficult times.

"She was strong; she gave him strength," the President said.

The former first lady wore a gown in her favorite shades of pink chiffon, a diamond wrist watch and bracelet that was Ike's gift on their 25th wedding anniversary, and a diamond necklace and earrings she said came from a friend.

With Ray Bolger as master of ceremonies, the guests, including the Nixons and their daughter, Julie Eisenhower, joined in singing "Once in Love with Mamie."

Ethel Merman belted out some of the honoree's favorite show tunes. Lawrence Welk, who performed at Eisenhower's 1957 inaugural, led the Marine band in "The Yellow Rose of Texas" and called up some ladies, including Martha Mitchell, to dance with him on stage.

After performing at the dinner, the 80-member West Point Glee Club gave Mrs. Eisenhower a music box that plays their traditional song, "Army Blue." When he delivered it, First Classman Glen Harper of Lake Charles, La., got a kiss from Mamie. When the music box didn't work at a first tryout, Nixon joked: "Where's Nader? It doesn't play."

Amid the tributes, Mrs. Eisenhower was named "military wife of the century," and the occasion even moved her to hold a rare press conference. She had only one in her eight years in the White House.

She explained she is keeping busy carrying on some of Eisenhower's projects, and offered her formula for a happy marriage: "It takes a lot of understanding and the willingness to adjust."

Exclusive Club to Honor Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has created an exclusive "65-50 Club" to honor Douglas B. Cornell, retiring Associated Press White House correspondent.

Apart from Cornell, the only club member is Richard Nixon, who is serving as its president. Cornell, who began covering the White House for the AP in 1936, retires Friday.

Nixon was prompted to originate the new club because Cornell, on Monday, was with him in Alaska on his final out-of-town AP assignment on his 65th birthday, which, coincidentally, took him to the only of the 50 states he had not previously visited during his AP tenure.

In Anchorage, before flying back to Washington, Nixon held an informal plane-side ceremony and signed Cornell's Secret Service-issued trip credentials, "Welcome to the 65-50 Club from Richard Nixon."

Nixon told Cornell: "It is a very exclusive club, just for the two of us, and you are the only member—I am the president."

Sadat's Power Surprising to Many

By C. C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — A year ago this evening Anwar Sadat interrupted mournful Koranic chanting on Cairo Radio to announce to a stunned nation the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Eight days later he was named Egypt's new leader.

Since then Sadat has surprised many not only by staying in office, but by consolidating his power, introducing domestic reforms and becoming a figure to be reckoned with on the international scene.

Sadat, 52, had been Nasser's vice president and in 1952 had announced Nasser's overthrow of the monarchy of King Farouk.

Nasser's portrait, not Sadat's, is in the arrival area of Cairo International Airport, and Nasser's portrait, side by side with Sadat's, decorates all official and many private offices. Workers, soldiers, policemen and others are to participate in special memorial services today and Sadat again is to address the nation.

But many things have changed in Egypt in the last year.

Gone is the old designation of United Arab Republic, which lingered here long after the 1958 marriage of Egypt and Syria collapsed a decade ago. It was replaced by the Arab Republic of Egypt this month with the federation of Egypt, Libya and Syria.

Gone too is the provisional constitution of Nasser's day, replaced, also this month, by what Cairo's government-controlled press hailed as a new "freedom constitution." It was approved by 99.98 per cent of the voters and emphasizes socialism while protecting freedom, women's rights and the furtherance of Islam as the national religion.

Under Sadat a wider Arab unity is being sought and life is easing for Egyptians, with promises of greater improvements filling the press: increasing the minimum wage; improving working conditions at the industrial complex of Helwan, scene of recent labor unrest; higher pensions; less government red tape and the restoration of middle class property sequestered during Nasser's era.

Opponents fare less well. Nasser's one-time vice president and prime minister—and Sadat's former vice president and chief rival—Aly Sabry, is among 91 defendants on trial or awaiting trial behind closed doors before a special "revolution tribunal" on charges of plotting to depose Sadat last May.

On Sept. 4, the state prosecutor asked for the death penalty for Sabry and eight others among the first dozen defendants to be tried.

Computers Hit by Periodic Shakeouts

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The volatile computer industry, with annual revenues of $12.5 billion, has been hit by another of its periodic shakeouts.

RCA Corp. stunned the industry on Sept. 17 by pulling out of the highly competitive general purpose computer market.

Only a year earlier Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA, had challenged the industry giant, International Business Machines Corp., with a new line of big computers.

With a year of dismal experience behind it, RCA decided to withdraw rather than spend an additional $500 million in the next five years in an effort to make its computer operations profitable. RCA said it expected to write off a $250 million loss this year.

Memorex Corp. of Santa Clara, Calif., a manufacturer of computer peripheral equipment, charged that RCA was a victim of IBM's "monopolistic position" in the industry.

IBM has declined to reply, or to speculate publicly on the reasons for RCA's withdrawal or its long range impact on the computer industry.

In another development, Honeywell Corp. said it was expanding its capacity to make large scale computers but said that this had nothing to do with RCA's withdrawal.

RCA said it would continue to develop and make specialized communications systems for government and defense, communications networks and business.

RCA employed about 10,000 people in its computer division. Layoffs already have started at manufacturing facilities in Massachusetts, Florida, Maine and New Jersey.

RCA computers accounted for about 4 per cent of the total market and in 1970 produced about $225 million in revenues, 7 per cent of the company's total income.

Black Caucus Plans 1972 Strategy

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NORTH LAKE, Ill. (AP) — Black political leaders decided at super-secret talks last weekend to continue working on several 1972 election strategies before committing themselves to any single one, several participants revealed today.

The 50 or so black elected officials and political strategists who came from around the country to talk for 2½ days in rooms guarded by an armed security force agreed to meet again in 30 to 60 days at a location not yet picked. They also decided to broaden dramatically the number of people involved by calling regional meetings.

Working under the name of the "National Assembly for a Black Political Strategy in '72," they set up five committees to raise money for future meetings, to decide where and when the meetings would be, and to draft more strategy papers for future discussions.

They were asked not to discuss publicly what they had talked about. But after being promised they would not be identified, a dozen who were there, some of whom disagreed with the request for silence, gave interviews that revealed the following:

—Most of the discussion focused on strategies to gain black decision-making power within the Democratic party by the time of the July 1972 Democratic National Convention. Delegates said black Americans must have a voice in state and local party decisions, as well as firm commitments from any Democratic presidential nominee for key cabinet and administrative jobs where blacks could help set national policies.

—The two strategies most favored were running favorite-son black candidates in state presidential primaries and running a single black presidential candidate, perhaps to be nominated at a black political convention.

Delegates argued that Democrats need black votes to win elections on every level, but

Possibility of Counter Punch to Import Charge Emerges at Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility of an economic counterpunch to the United States' 10-per-cent import surcharge and its refusal to devalue the dollar has emerged at the annual International Monetary Fund meeting.

But whether the punch will actually be thrown, pulled or landed only lightly remains unsettled.

The indication of possible counterpunches came when West German Finance Minister Karl Schiller told Treasury Secretary John B. Connally that West Germany "may be compelled to come to a painful reappraisal of the economic and currency policy we have been pursuing."

Schiller told newsmen later Monday that his government is not thinking of full-scale economic retaliation against the United States.

"We are not crusaders," he said. "We are not thinking about countermeasures. We are not thinking about a trade war."

But, he added, as West German Finance minister, "I have to ask at some point: What are the alternatives? I hope this time will not come."

While Schiller talked of a "painful reappraisal," he announced a move that appeared designed to discourage the flow of dollars into West Germany and keep the value of the German mark from rising in relation to the dollar.

He said West Germany will compel German firms that borrow outside the country to deposit part of their borrowing with the West German bank. Another German official said the easing of domestic credit conditions also will be considered, another measure to discourage borrowing outside Germany.

European officials are almost unanimous in their view that the dollar should be devalued by raising the price of gold as part of the currency realignment of all countries.

They also are anxious to see the surcharge removed. But the United States says the surcharge will remain in effect until it receives assurances that a $13-billion turnaround in its balance-of-payments deficit can be achieved.

In a speech to delegates of the 118-nation Fund, Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer said top priority should be placed on establishment of a new schedule of official currency exchange rates "together with the abolition of the temporary import surcharge imposed by the United States."

"The surcharge can be justified as a means of improving the U.S. balance of payments only until it is possible to supplant it by effective action in the exchange-rate field," he said.

won't remember what it sounded like, but it was a good number which spotlighted Jimi Hendrix, one of the greats, on piano.

The main attraction, Savoy Brown, brought standing ovations and three encores. They did some songs from their latest album, "Street Corner Talking," as well as some new numbers. Kim Simmonds, the only original member of Savoy Brown, is 22 and has been associated with the group for six years. He plays a powerful guitar.

IT'S A SHAM—Dave Walker, lead vocalist with Savoy Brown kept raising his fist to the delight of the audience. It was a symbol of revolution, change and power to the people. And what revolution meant to this young audience was very clear. They violated the no-smoking rules, defiantly smoked pot in the hall, threw trash around, danced in the aisles and stole signs.

The young people in this audience, hopefully not the standard, have yet to understand what freedom and revolution are all about. They crowded the aisles and the front of the stage, disregarding the attendants trying to get them back into their seats. They ignored the young ushers and usherettes who politely asked them not to smoke. And they delighted in breaking the rules.

No, it wasn't the Fillmore. It wouldn't have happened there because the guys hired to keep the peace there were built like gorillas.

Seeing the people leave at the end of the show was the final touch. A young man appearing smug and self assured showed a trophy he had "liberated" from the concert: It was the sign for the Gate Carnegie.

REACTION—The crowd was good, said one young man about Savoy Brown. "They were great," contradicted his female companion.

In fact, the whole concert was great, but the audience was a little better.
